PROGRAM

Accompanying tour with air conditioning Van.

Guide in the language required for the entire tour.

Sian Ka'an Biosphere is located south of Tulum, is the second largest protected natural reserve in the Caribbean, and Unesco heritage site since 1987.

The tour features the passage of the peninsula of Sian Ka'an, a thin line of land between lagoon and the Caribbean Sea. Reach the end of the peninsula, the town of Punta Allen, a fishing community living in harmony with the rules of reservation.

Once entered into the biosphere left the road on a trail in the jungle. After 15 km (an hour away approx.) A stop waiting on the bridge of Boca Paila, the only point at which the peninsula of Sian Ka'an is interrupted and the sea meets the lagoon. From here you can see some species of birds and animals among which is the crocodile. After yet a few kilometers (30 minute walk approx.) You get to Paso Lagarto (halfway towards Punta Allen), hence, on the lagoon side, climb aboard small boats of fishermen, 5 or 6 persons. We will sail to Punta Allen visiting and discovering the lagoon flora and fauna: mangrove islands, several species of birds, turtles, dolphins, etc.

Allen will stop at a restaurant booked on the beach in Punta. Just time for a little snack (sandwich and drink) and take advantage of health services. The boat to continue the excursion at sea to the coral reef, where those who wish may make the activity of snorkeling (equipment included) to the discovery of corals and reef animals is resumed. The last stage of the tour, for a nice toast with tequila in the "natural pools" a corner of the Caribbean sea with colorful magazine, closed between a bay and reef where the water without waves remains below the waist.

At last we reach the boats directly on the beach of our restaurant where the food is ready: a complete dish with rice and vegetables with fish, meat or vegetable, choice of host. Drinks are included.

After eating will take the time to relax and enjoy the beach, then back toward the hotel. The arrival is expected before dinner.

WHALE SHARK

Nothing next to the largest of all sharks and the largest fish that exists, the whale shark is one of the most dramatic views of the oceans. Its large size, distinctive patterns and huge frontal mouth make it immediately recognizable and can be seen commonly roaming near the surface in tropical and subtropical waters around the world. Their diet is mainly based on plankton, although they also regularly feed on schools of small fish and squid. Unlike peregrine sharks, which simply filter vast amounts of water as they swim, whale sharks actively suck their prey before filtering it efficiently and they are sometimes seen in group, feeding on large concentrations of food. They appear regularly in the same places at specific times of the year, probably to capitalize on the flowering of plankton and events such as coral spawning. These sharks have become the focal point of the ecotourism industry in some parts of the globe, especially on the west coast of Australia, where divers take the opportunity to swim with these docile giants.

IT INCLUDES:

- Round transportation
- Continental breakfast
- Water and Refreshment during the Day Beer After Performing the Activity
- Shrimp and Fish Ceviche
- Full Snorkeling Equipment
